The Tazewell County Normal is now being held at the High School building. Mr. P. H. Williams, Supt., of county schools, is in charge of it. The instructors are Prof. Byrom and Dings of Tazewell High School and Tazewell College, respectively. A number of teachers in the public schools of the county are attending the Normal and we have no doubt will both enjoy and profit by its work.

We have received the first number of "The Republican," an eight column newspaper, which is now being published weekly at Bluefield, W. Va. We welcome the Republican to our exchange list and trust it will have a successful and useful life.

A man by the name of Day stole three horses last Saturday night in Bland county and brought them to Burke's Garden where he was forced to abandon them, being closely pursued by parties from Bland. Day then came into the Unaka neighborhood, four miles east of town, and on Monday night stole a horse from Charley Calloway. The thief was again pursued and he abandoned the horse on Wolf Creek in Bland. At last accounts he had cut across the mountains for Graham.

We are informed that some of the people on Pounding Mill Branch are having serious trouble with their cattle and hogs. They are afflicted with a disease supposed to be hydrophobia. When an animal is afflicted with the disease it either dies or has to be killed. Some cattle in the Cove, we are told, have also died from the same disease.

Mr. Jno. W. McCall, acting as special constable under a warrant from J. M. McCall, a justice of peace, last night captured Kelly Day, who is charged with stealing a horse near Unaka on Monday night. He caught him near Bluestone Junction, and brought him to-day to this place. He was taken before Squire H. G. Peery, who continued the hearing of the case until Saturday for the purpose of securing necessary witnesses.

On Sunday morning at three o'clock little Katie Peery, daughter of Mr. C. H. Peery, died at the home of her father at North Tazewell, after a brief illness with fever. She was an unusually bright, pretty and attractive child and her death was a great blow to her parents and family. On Monday morning at 10 o'clock funeral services were held by Rev. I. P. Martin and the remains were buried in the family grave yard nearby. We extend our cordial sympathy to the parents in their deep affliction.

Mr. Wilmer E. Williams, after a protracted illness, died at his home in Marion on last Thursday. For about ten years he was the foreman of the "Patriot and Herald" office while it was published by the editor of the REPUBLICAN. He was a most capable printer and a man of many excellent qualities, being especially devoted to the welfare of his employer. At the time of his death he held the position of United States Commissioner, which he had filled acceptably for a number of years. Mr. Williams was one of the most fearless men we have ever known, and was sometimes reckless in the performance of official duty. He leaves a wife and a son and daughter. We extend them our warmest sympathy.

Mr. Wm. W. Dunn, who in ante bellum days was a merchant at this place, but who is now a resident of Fort Worth, Texas, is here on a visit to the home of his early manhood. Mr. Dunn came to Jeffersonville, now Tazewell, in 1849, and remained at this place until 1858, following the mercantile business during his residence. He quit business here in 1858, but returned in 1859 and remained a brief time settling up his old matters. He then went to Texas where he has since lived, and where he has accumulated, we are informed, quite a fortune. Mr. Dunn, though seventy-seven years old, is well preserved, and finds very few persons alive in the community who were here when he left in 1859. He came to see how the country had changed and progressed and expresses himself pleased with the progress the town and county have made since he left here. Those who knew Mr. Dunn in former days as well as the descendants of those who were his intimates and acquaintances while a resident of Tazewell, have given him a cordial reception.

Her Face
Is fair to look upon—but one mole, one scar, one flaw—would mar its beauty.

Strange, isn't it, how big an insignificant little flaw is sometimes? The Prince of France lost his life because a single weak spot in a small buckle gave way and down he tumbled from his into the hands of murderous savages. A little flaw in a fire insurance policy is often big enough to keep a man from collecting his insurance after a fire, and may ruin him financially. No flaws in policies I write. My best recommendation is that I have placed some of the largest risks ever placed by any one individual in Southwest Virginia.

Pretty good evidence that I understand my business, ain't it? I want your insurance, big or little as it may be,

Is the place
To buy your medicines.

It is a bad sign to hear a person always praising their own honesty, accuracy or competency. These virtues tell their own tale and do not have to be emblazoned about or trumpeted from the house tops. It is an old and truthful maxim that self praise is half scandal. We would rather show our competency and accuracy than tell you of it, and will bear the decision of an honest public as to whether our goods are pure and service competent and accurate in all of its branches. We are willing to stand up before the good people of Tazewell who we have been serving for the past four years and let them decide in regard to our merits. Talk is deceptive but facts are stubborn things and cannot be denied. So do not be deceived but come right along to the old reliable Tazewell Drug Co. and get your prescriptions compounded by G. H. Landon, a pharmacist who has had 40 years of practical experience in the profession and knows the wants of the public.

PROPER CARE OF HAY.

How to Build a Movable Roof for the Haystack Which Assures Absolute Protection.

Few understand the art of stacking so that rain will not get into the center. One great enemy to keeping hay is the wind, especially in Kansas. Many times the farmer gets his hay and grain stacked up in good condition, and along comes a gust of wind and all of his labor is swept away, as far as the keeping qualities of his stack are concerned. Enough hay goes to waste every year on many farms to pay for lumber to cover it. In Illinois, years ago, stacks of hay were roofed with three-eighths or five-eighths inch MOVABLE ROOF FOR HAYSTACK. They were hip-roofed, making them as solid as light material could make them. Built to a finish, or in place, the four by four inch posts were set in the ground 14 feet high, with four plates at the top to hold the posts in position and keep them plumb. The roof was placed in position before the posts were set up, having the corners at the eave ends of the roof set so as to permit the roof to slide up or down on or between the posts. Holes were bored in the posts to put in pins to hold the roof up. When it is time to begin stacking, fasten the roof at the top of the posts and begin the stack between the posts. Build to a finish, or in place, there is not enough hay cut, put in what there is, stopping work on the stack for any length of time, take out the pins and lower the roof down upon the hay, leaving the hay level, or nearly so. As the stack settles, the roof will follow the hay down and protect it from rain and wind.—W. H. Doane, in Farm and Home.

ancey in American Swineherd. It is very important to have the pig well bred, as that is the foundation, and, like building a house, it is important to have a good foundation. Then by using good material and skill in architecture we build a good, substantial house; so with the pig. We want it well bred as a foundation, then by the proper method of feeding we develop it into a fine hog. No young breeder will ever succeed in the business unless he makes a study of the proper method of feeding pigs, as feed is the principal factor in the improvement of swine. It is well known that by grading seed wheat and seed corn and planting the largest and best developed grains the grain will be improved from year to year; so with the pig. By feeding the pig a well-balanced ration, a ration that will build up all the different parts of the hog, especially the valuable parts—the loin and ham, the muscular or lean. The pigs thus fed till they arrive at the proper age to breed will transmit their good qualities to their offspring, and, like the large grains of corn or wheat, the improvement will go on from generation to generation. Pigs should be fed a variety of feeds. The best feed for young pigs is shorts mixed with skimmed milk, fed sweet, or ground wheat, or ground oats with the hulls sieved out. Oat hulls are not good for pigs, but there is nothing better than mixed oats with the hulls extracted, mixed with sweet milk. This with a little corn will make a good balanced ration; feed them regular and enough to keep them rapidly growing. Our best should never stop growing. Our best improved pigs should gain at least one pound per day, or it would not injure them to make them gain 1½ pounds per day if fed a muscle and bone-producing food.

Is the season of harvesting. The progressive, the economical and the prosperous farmer knows to save time and money he must have the best tools with which to do his harvesting; and hates cheap tools, which ever need repairing at the time he most needs them. We will sell you good harvesting tools and machinery of every description and will dispel any doubts you may have about the quality being the highest and the prices the lowest any dealer can make, quality considered.
